Letters have been diſpatched to all the field-officers named in the preceding liſt, notifying their appointments, &c. and as they will probably expect, upon making known their acceptance of the ſtations aſſigned them, to have their commiſſions forwarded, the clerk of the council thinks it the proper time to publiſh the following reſolution for the information of theſe gentlemen, as well as of thoſe who will hereafter be appointed to the remaining grades. Without undertaking to preſcribe the exact mode in which the directions of this reſolution are to be complied with, he hopes that a due attention to it will be conſidered as not unimportant to him, and that every gentleman whom it concerns will take ſome convenient method of realizing the conſiderate intention with which it was framed.

Whereas the duties of the clerk of the council to the governor will be conſiderably increaſed by the appointments under the act to regulate and diſcipline the militia of this ſtate, and it is juſt and reaſonable that ſome compenſation ſhould be given him for his additional trouble, Reſolved, That the clerk of the council ſhall and he is hereby authoriſed to charge one ſhilling and ten-pence halfpenny for each commiſſion, and the ſaid fee to be paid by the perſon accepting the ſame.

NATIONAL CONVENTION.

TUESDAY, April 1.

Suppreſſion of the executive council, and of the ſix miniſters and their aſſiſtants.

Carnot, in the name of the committee of public welfare, having demonſtrated all the incompatibility of an executive council with a republican government, even the danger which reſults from it to liberty, propoſed the ſuppreſſion of all the miniſters. "The real friend of the people," ſaid Carnot, "is he who ſuffers himſelf to be long looked after before he accepts any public functions, who withdraws from them as ſoon as poſſible, and poorer than when he aſſumed them, and who returns among his equals to lead a quiet irreproachable life."

Carnot terminated by propoſing the following decree, which was adopted with the laudeſt applauſe.

Art. 1. The national convention decrees, that the proviſory executive council is ſuppreſſed; as alſo the ſix miniſters and their aſſiſtants who compoſe it.

Art. 2. Its functions ſhall entirely ceaſe on the 20th of April.

Art. 3. It ſhall be replaced by the following twelve commiſſions, namely: 1. Of adminiſtration, police, and tribunals; 2. Of public inſtruction; 3. Of agriculture, arts and manufactures; 4. Of commerce and ſupplies; 5. Of public works; 6. Of public relief; 7. Of tranſports, poſts and poſt-offices; 8. Of finance; 9. Of the organization of the movements of the armies by land; 10. Of the marine and the colonies; 11. Of arms and gunpowder; 12. Of external concerns.

Art. 4. All thoſe commiſſioners ſhall give daily an account of their operations to the committee of public welfare, before which they ſhall lay the denunciation of abuſes, and their plans for uſeful reforms.

Art. 5. Thoſe commiſſions ſhall be wholly reſponſible for their operations.

April 4.

The revolutionary tribunal being fully engaged with the grand trial of Danton, Chabot and Co. has been obliged to reſpite ſeveral individuals of leſs note. The priſons are daily more and more crowded, and contain at this time, according to the report of the bulletin, 6881 victims. Among theſe are M. de Maupeu, the ſon of the ci-devant chancellor of ſtate; and Guillemant, Allain, Danjou, and Geneſt, all members of the revolutionary committee of the ſection of Marat.
