

actually did appraise the estate in dollars at 7/6, an allowance be obtained in favour of the administrator in his account; for no inventories are received, either by the commissary-general, or by his deputies, but such as are valued in dollars at 6s; or, when known to be valued otherwise, whose amount total is not previously converted into that currency.

It is to be observed, that the appraisement of the deceased's effects, together with the list of debts, and money received by the executor or administrator, either before, or since such appraisement, do jointly constitute but one whole inventory; by which collective sums pauper estates are determined, as well, as the extent of the deputy commissary's power in the passing of accounts.

An inventory so circumstanced, (with the warrant, certifying the appraisers qualifications, thereto annexed) being produced, the following probate is to be taken, by the administrator, to wit.
