

allowed, to pass an additional, or final account, Construction of the account. that is, from one court to another, held at Annapolis by the commissary-general, on the second tuesdays in January, March, May, July, September and November, no longer time being ever granted, except in some particular cases. Every account, but more especially a final account, (in which it must never be omitted) must mention at the foot of it, the names of the sureties on the administration, with their places of abode, and in all accounts of intestates estates, particular mention must be made of the names of the kindred entitled to a distributive share thereof, and in what degree they are related.

Lastly the probate is to be administered, previous to which, the executor or administrator should be questioned, if he did not obtain these receipts upon the payment, or on securing the payment, of a less sum, seriously cautioning him, that it is really included in the oath he is going to take, that he hath actually, and bona fide paid, or secured to be paid, the whole sums for which he claims allowance. If no objection is made, then he is to take the following oath, viz.

—— county, ff. the — day of ——.

Then came N. N. administrator of A. B. late Probate to of —— county deceased, and made oath, &c. that the account.
