

How connected.

Brief explanation.

Briefly describe.

What constitutes evidence

shall judge between said locations, and all locations by protraction shall be made by course and distance according to the description of the lands so located, to be shown and proved by some patent, deed, or other paper to be given in evidence, and shall be connected by the course and distance of some title paper or other competent evidence, with lines and objects located by actual survey; but in making locations by protraction, the surveyor may correct by protraction to calls for corners or objects already located on the plats either by actual survey or by protraction, and the surveyor shall hereafter return only three copies of the plats and certificates of survey, and it shall not be necessary in said certificates to incorporate any tables of courses and distances, but said certificates shall contain only a brief explanation of the plats and of the tracts of land and objects shown on the same, describing by a letter or device the point on the plat where each tract begins, and describing by color, number, &c., the lines on the plat which represent the boundaries of each tract or parcel of land, and describing by letter or device the manner and place where and in which all other objects are represented on said plats; and it shall not be necessary to describe the location of any tract or object more than once in each of said certificates, although a greater number of title papers may be offered in evidence containing its lines; but each party shall file with the surveyor, to be returned along with said certificate, a list of the deeds, patents or other conveyances or title papers which he means to offer in evidence at the trial of the cause, briefly describing same by date, place of record or other means of identification; and said surveyor shall return said lists along with his certificates, and no title paper shall be offered in evidence by either party unless such list shall have been so delivered by him to said surveyor, nor unless said paper shall appear on said list; and if either party shall make any surveys or locations which the court, in its discretion, shall think unnecessary, the party requiring the same shall pay the cost thereof; and any party to any cause hereafter tried may give in evidence any patent, deed or other paper which would be evidence in the cause, if it shall be located in whole, or only such part thereof as may be necessary to
