

1 consider it.

2 JUDGE FAIRBANKS: Why not a Sessions Court,
3 just a Common Sessions. In the District of Columbia, they 4 use General Sessions.

5 MR. SYKES: You also get Special Court, Judi-
6 cial Court.

7 JUDGE FAIRBANKS: There are all kinds of names
8 used throughout the country. There is no harm going back
9 to perhaps an old English name. One could be picked out.
10 I am not prepared to suggest one. Somehow People's Court
11 has an unsavory connotation at this particular time.

12 JUDGE CLAPP: Mr. Melvin, wouldn't the confusion
13 in the term, District Court, be avoided anyway in that 14 your docketing would be the District Court for the First 15 District of Maryland or the Second District, as the case 16 may be? We would avoid the possible confusion of the 17 Maryland Federal Court.

18 THE CHAIRMAN: I suppose it would, if it is 19 done that way. As Vernon said, we have not put that 20 detail into the Constitution.

21 JUDGE CURLEY: What kind of confusion would
