

1 answer that question.

2 I have one other suggestion, going back to 3 the very first item that was mentioned in the discussion
4 this evening, this question of titling for what is here
5 described as the People's Court. I would suggest to you
6 that perhaps the name, the General Court would be an 7 appropriate name, because it accomplishes all of the 8 three things that you really want to accomplish in this 9 kind of organization. It is a fresh name, a new name, 10 one that hasn't been used before, and therefore is not 11 only not associated with the form, but not associated 12 with the Communist countries or whatever else one may 13 associate the name of People's Court. Secondly, I think 14 the term carries with it the dignity that was the thrust
15 of the report of the Maryland State Bar Committee's pre-16 sentation in Atlantic City, and thirdly, I think it is an 17 appropriate descriptive name from the general public point 18 of view because as far as they are concerned, it will 19 be the General Court. It will be the court to which the 20 average person goes or before which he appears in the 21 course of his lifetime.
