C E,

OTWITHSTANDING our Hopes of an Accommodation between the Turks and Russians, Hostilities still continue. According to our last Letters from the Levant the Russians have debarqued a Number of Troops at the Island of Tenedos, fituate to the South-East of Lem-

Cafle which defends the Port, which is very proto favour their projected Enterprise against the dinelles, from whence this Place is but a few laques diffant. This News is confirmed by Letters a Otranto.

D 72/25. Dispatches of a very private, and it is said

y important Nature have been feat to the Garrithis of Gibraltar and Minorca; and all the Officers in are now absent from their Quirters, are compared to return with all possible Expedition.

We are informed that in the next Sessions of Parliarent, Priloners for Debt will be fo far relieved, that tich as are willing sto give up their Effects to their Celitors, will be released from Confinement. And Ba krupts, who have turrendered their all, will be het from Ariefts. But the most severe Punishments sil be it flicted on fraudulent Debtors, or such as seta fingle Shi ling from their Creditors.

-m, we hear, was lately informed that L-1 C-in, we near, was lately informed that is might have the next vacant Garter for aking; but is aniwered, that, when he recollected the Things ip in whom the Older was hourly conferred, he dought it a Difgrace to any Man of Honour or Sensi-

Tuesday Night Orders were sent down to Ports-nouth and Chatham, to fit out several more Men of War as soon as possible, which we hear are to sail with some others (fitting out there before) to the West-Indies, it being strongly suspected that the French have some Design on those Islands, which are already at War within themselves, and it is pretty certain that at War within themselves, and it is pretty certain that at War within themselves, and it is pretty certain that they have been the Promoters of it; it is also said that some of the Men of War are to be stationed some Time at Virginia, and the rest at S. Carolina.

It is said that the late Dispute between the French Ambassador's Servants and the Constables, at a Publick-House in Crown-Court, Westminster, cannot be settled, and in all probability will be the Foundation for a War, a Messenger having been sent to Paris for Instructions how the Ambassador is to proceed surther in the Affair, who returned from thence Yesterday. It is the Opinion of the Politicians at the West-End of the Town, that England will be at War with both France and Spain before the Expiration of Eight Months.

Some Propositions of a very singular Nature relative to the Ministry, will shortly be presented to a great Personage by some leading Men in the [Ibid.]

The following is the King of Sweden's Speech, at the Open-ing of the Dyet, son Wednesday the acts of June; and is looked upon as a Master-piece of Eloquence.

MOST noble, mest reverend, trusty and well be-loved, the Mea who compose the Four Orders f the Swedish People.

Every Thing at this present Moment, even the very Every Thing at this present Moment, even the very Place I occupy, calls to my Mind, as it does to yours, our great and common Loss. When the States of the Kingdom terminated their last Assembly, they beheld in this Place a King, respected and beloved, surrounded by affectionate Subjects, and Three Sons, who difference with them the Advantage of giving him the Arongest Proofs of their Veneration and their Love. In the stead of a Sight so affecting, you now behold only Three Osphans, overwhelmed with Grief, who mingle their Tears with yours, and whose Wounds bleed afresh at the Sight of those which seem to rend your Hearts.

your Hearts.
The Tears of Subjects are the most glorious Monuments that can be raised to the Memory of a good King. Those which you fited this Day, are a spur to me that animates me to Virtue, and an Encouragement to merk, after the Example of a Father to fincerely regretted, your Attachment and Confidence, by Clemency and Goodness.

I shall say nothing here about the Transactions of Government, since your last Meeting. You will be informed of them by the Pièces that shall be communicated to you. My Absence did not permit me to effect any Thing for the publick Good; however, if we have the Happiness now to see Peace reign at home and abread, Friendship preserved, and Considence securely established with the Neighbours and oldest Allies curely established with the Neighbours and oldest Allies of this Kingdom, these are the Fruits of the Prudence and Wisdom of Administration, to which I am glad and Wildom or Administration, to when I am gladto testify publickly here my Acknowledgment.

As to the Object of the present Assembly, I think I need not say any Thing about it. You know what, the great Change that has happened in this State reuires of you; you know your Rights, and it is to exert them that you are here convoked. For that End, I with you the Bleffing of Heaven, that Peace and Unity may prefide in all your Counfels, and lead them to a happy Iffue.

Born and educated among you, I learnt from my earlief Youth to love the Country. to confider it as earliest Youth to love the Country, to consider it as the greatest Happiness to be a Swede, and as the greatest Glory to be the first Citizen of a free Country.

All my Designs will be fulfilled, if the Resolutions you are going to pass, contribute to strengthen the Felicity, Glory, and Independence of this Nation; to see it happy, is the first Object of my Wishes; to govern it free and independent, is the last End of my Ambition.

Do not think, my dear Sweder, that thefe are empty Professions, belied, perhaps, by the secret Motions of my Heart; they are the faithful Expressions of what that Heart seels; too upright not to be lincere; too haughty to be ever false to its Engagements.

I have feen feveral Countries; I have endeavoured to attain a Knowledge of their Moralis, their Form of Government; the Situation more or less advantageous of their People. I have found, that it is neither arbitrary Power in the Hands of the Prince; nor Luxury and Manniference, par Treasures and Gallan Door ry and Magnificence; nor Treasures amaled by Occonomy, that can render the Subjects happy; that can become fo only by Concord, and the Love of the Country. It then depends folely on yourfelves to be the happieft Nation on Earth. Let this Dyet be diftinguished for ever in our Annals by the Sacrifice of every private Views of Avery Beneaut of preferat every private View; of every Rancour of personal Jealousy, to the grand Interest of the publick Weal. I shall, on my Side, contribute to the utmost of my Power to conciliate your divided Minds; to resunite your Hearts alienated from each other, that this Aft fembly may become, with the Blessing of the Most High, the Bra of a permanent Felicity to this Kings

I affure you all, and every one in particular, of my Royal Good-will and Protection.

Extract of a Letter from Windfor, July 26, copied from an Evening Paper of Saturday.

As to the Ccremonial, you knew as much of it before it took Place as we do now; you will perhaps with to hear a few of the Occurrences of the Day.

After Dinner the new Regulation of the Lord Steward took Place about the Scramble; as it was thought a better Plan of Occorony to carry the Victuals to the Moh than to let the Moh come to the Victuals. thought a better Plan of Oeconomy to carry the Victuals to the Mob, than to let the Mob come to the Victuals. Accordingly the Windows of the Castle were thrown open, and the Provisions tossed out to the gaping Croud below. A Cloud of Hams, Chickens, Pasties, Croud below. A Cloud of Hams, Chickens, Pasties, Haunches, and Delicacies of every Kind, with Knives, Forks, Plates, Table-Cloths and Napkins, their Companions, darkened the Air. This was succeeded by Showers of Liquor; some conveyed in Bottles properly corked, but the greater Pare in Rain. The Seramble was more diverting than any Part of the preceding Farce. You would see one stooping for a Fowl, and a great Ham falling plump on his Back is another, having a Fork stuck in his Shoulder, and looking up to secure himself from more of the Arrows thus slying by Day, received a creamed Apple-Pye full in his Face. A Beef-eater having lost his Cap in the Scusse, had his Loss repaired by a Venison Pasty falling inverted upon his Head. A Bargeman who had just setured a noble Haunch of Venison, was returing as fast as he could with his Booty, and ran with it full against the Back of Lord and made an Impression on it so like a Gridiron, that all the Mob, pressed to the second with the Gridiron, that all the Mob, to the Mob, than to let the Mob come to the Victuals. against the Back of Lord and made an Imperior on it is like a Gridiron, that all the Mob, after they ecased their Laughter, cried out, Smoke the Merry Andrew.

Our Inn-keepers and Inhabitants are more different they are for they after the annual than any for the annual than any our Inn-keepers and Inhabitants are more disappointed than any, for they asked so extravagantly before the Day for Ledgings, Provisions, and Accommodations; that you have a Bed, Stabling, and every Convenience, where you please, and for what you please. I must inform you, that Two or Three Days before the Installation, it was almost impossible for any of the Inhabitants to get. Provisions at any Rate, as every Thing was kept for this Day; so that we had like to have starved in the Midst of Plenty, but fortunately for us, the Melancholy News arrived that a nstely for us, the Melancholy News arrived that as Brother of the Cuten was deed, and the Infallation would be postponed. Immediately the Price of Provisions sunk almost to nothing; and had the Report continued for many Hours, the Ceremony of throwing Provisions out of Window would have begun fooner than to Day.

Ooner than to Day.

As I have been generally entertained with the Folly of this Fefival, it is with pain I mention, that it has been concluded with a ferious Riot, in which there has been much Mischief."
