PUBLISHED And to be SOLD at this PRINTING-OFFICE, That celebrated little book, entitled,

SURE and CERTAIN METHODS of attaining a long and healthy life;

Written by Lewis Cornaro, an Italian nobleman, when he was near an hundred years of age, with a recommendation by the hon. Toseph Addison (author of the Spectator) in the following words:

Cornaro was of an infirm constitution till about forty, when he steadily persisting in the course of life recommended in this book, he recovered a pertect state of health, insomuch, that at four score he published this work. He lived to give a third or fourth edition of it, and after having passed his hundredth year died without pain or agony, like one who falls' asleep. The treatise I mention has been taken notice of by several eminent authors, and is written with fuch a spirit of cheerfulness, religion, and good sense, as are the natural concomitants of temperance and fobriety.— The mixture of the old man in it is rather a recommendation to it than a discredit."

. N. B. The London edition of this very entertaining and valuable book has fold for 6/6. The American edition, on a fair paper and large type, neatly bound and lettered, 3/3 each.
