THE HELIGION OF THE FASHION.
ABLE WORLD.

THIS much admired tract is reputed to be the shufflon of the celebrated Haumah Moore, of hole zeal for religiou, and ability to explain and force its doctrines, her avowed works furnift an deniable proof. It is not deligned as an answer to e avils and sneers of the insidel, but being added to those who profess to be, and may have feated themselves that they are, christians, difays with admirable beauty of language & force of general the effential distinction between the mere ofesson and the systematic practice of christianibetween that system of mere moral duties, ofe "barren generalities," to which we are not to pay our homage, and that-comprehensive aem of faith and doctrine which was revealed the blessed Redeemer of man, and every part of sich we, as his disciples, are equally hound to abrace and observe. This publication commences it a view of the present state of religion among considerable part of the fashionable world, and mrafts the notions so prevalent in this "our y," with the opinions and practices of purer es of christianity, when religion, such as is ught in the gospel, was the study, the delight is practice, of christians of every order of society and when to expound its doctrines, to assist to the struths, and to animate to its observance, as not deemed to be exclusively the business the professed divine, but was the pleasing emprendication of the man of letters, the statesman. It coreds to unfold, as well the causes as the contemers of the present decline of vital religion, & laminate by the design of the man of letters, the struth of sign and the accomplished gentleman. It coreds to unfold, as well the causes as the contemers of the present decline of vital religion, & laminate by the sum of the man of letters, the struth of sign and the accomplished gentleman. It comes to unfold make a religion for themselves and so would make a religion for themselves and so would make a religion for themselves and so would make a religion for themselves ake the whole fubflance of the latter to conint a rundual disharge of our focial obligations, derhaps now and then, an oftenatious display lan. liberality; it will not endure that a right is will furnish an apology for a vicious life, nor mit that a christian life can grow upon a wrong the "It declares that christiantly must be empty." the "It declares that chrittiantly must be emanded entirely if it be received at all, it must taken without mutilation as a perfect scheme in away in which God has been pleased to reveal? There is no breaking this system into parts, thich we are at liberty to chuse one and reject wher There is no separating the evidences from societies—the doctrines from the precepts—beform ole-dience—morality from piety—the love four neighbour from the love of God.
