The Canker of the Commonwealth. With hard drinkers, and their familles, (if families they unfortu-nately have) it must need be hard times: and of hard drinkers no inconsiderable portion of our nation is composed. How widely is this evil spread! How numerous & how deplorably wretched are its victims!

A new Thermometer. Lynchburg, (Virg.) Nov. 181. We have seen, lately, a thermometer, which was invented & made by an artist in Copenhagen, of very extraordinary work manship, and up-on a principle which, falthough well known, has never before been employed for this purpose. This thatnometer is, in form, similar to a watch, and is entirely composed of different metals, without any fluid. These metals are so combined, as, by every contraction and expansion to move an index in like manner as the hour or minute hand of a time plece-which index points to's division of a circle corresponding to Reaumur's scale. This index We were informed, showed the alterations of heat and cold, more sensi-

Austerits of the Manks of La Trappe. Every one, at his first entrance, assumes a new name. Wigh his former appellation, each is supposed not only to quit the world, but to adjure every recollection on memory of his former self. No word ever dropped from their lips, which possibly can give the least clue, by which the others can guess who they are, or where they came from-Often have persons of the very name, family & neighbourhood lived together in the convent for years unknown to each other; nor have they suspected their proximity till at the death of the one, the name on the grave stone revealed the secret to the survivor. Some years ago a youth of great talent entered himself at La Trappe. His early and deep piety edified the whole society. After a few years the austerities he had practised at an early age, undermined his health. He fell into a slow decline-One of the monks was appointed to attend him. He was selected as having himself left the world at a very early period. The youth died. About a year after his death one of the monks happening to go rather earlier than usualinto the burying-grounds, their usual walking place, he saw the inonk, who attended the youth standing with his arms folded, contemplating his tomb. On hearing him, he immediately fell back into the walk, no more notice was taken, the burying-ground continued to be the daily walking place, nor did any other symptom ever escape. Ten years after the monk died - Hisgrave stone unfolded the secret. It was his only son, whom, though unknown to him, he had so diligently attend-

25th of August last, negro Sam Butler, or as he is sometimes called Sam-Dugan. He was raised the property of Nicholas Carroll, esq. late of the of Annapolis, and sold to a Mr. Geo. Howard of Baltimore, from whom I purchased him. Sam is about 30 years of age, 5 feet, 7 or 8 inches high, slene der made, narrow between the shoulders, rather of a yellowish color-and long face. His under jaw rather longer than he upper one, and eyes having considerable white in them, his feet are ill shaped with large lumps on the inside of them, by some called the pudding or gut foot. He makes some pretensions to religion—but being in uncommon liar, may be easily detected on that head. Is a great coward. It is quite likely he has obtained a pass, but without the county seal I should suppose this would have no weight; his of wood land.
