Explanation of the mode of drawing—All the tickets of the lottery are placed in a wheel, and in another wheel are placed all the prizes of the Scheme over those of $1. The drawing proceeds in the usual manner, and drawing of the capital prize of $30,000 determines the destination of all the $4 prizes. It is thus-should the $30,000 prize be drawn to an Even Number then all the tickets of Even Numbers throughout the lottery will be entitled to a prize of 4 dollars, in addition to any other prize which they may have drawn. If the 30,000 dollar prize should be drawn by an Odd Number, it is then the same in regard to the Old Numbers. Tickets of Even Numbers are those where the Numbers end with 2, 4, 6, 8 Ticket of Odd Nos. 8, or Do do. 1, 3, 5, 7, 9.

The excellency of this mode of drawing, and its superiority to any other, consists in the chriainty there is of receiving back a portion of what-ever amount, may be invested, and at the same time having a chance for all the high prizes. There have been two previous class es of Maryland State Lotteries drawn on this plan, the highly favourable opinion of which has been tested by an ensive patronage hitherto unsurpassedi
