Prepared by himself.

To NOTHERS AND NURSES.

The passage of the Teeth through the gums produces treal-some and dangerous symptoms. It is known by agher that there is great irritation in the mouth and gums during this process. The gums swell, the secretard states of saliva is increased, the child is seized with frequent and sudden fits of crying, watchings, starting in qual and sudden fits of crying, watchings, starting in gual and sudden fits of crying, watchings, starting in gual and sudden fits of crying, watchings, starting in gual starting in gual the sleep, and spassmodic convulsions universally supervene, and soon cause the dissolution of the infant. If mothers who have their little babes afflicted with these distancing symptoms, would apply Dr. William Evanstandered Soothing Syrup, which has preserved hundred of infants when thought past recovery, from being-takenly attacked with that fatal malady, convulsions.

In. W. Evans' Celebrated Soothing Syrup, for Children Cutting their Teeth. This infallible remedy has preserved hundreds of chilira, when thought past recovery, from convulsions. As soon as the Syrup is rubbed on the gums, the child will recover. This preparation is so innocent, see Enzerous, and so pleasant, that no child will refie to let its gums be rubbed with it. When infants are at the age of four months, though there is no appearance of teeth, one bottle of the Syrup should be used on the gums, to open the pores. Parents should herer be without the Syrup in the nursery where there are young children; for if a child wakes in the night rich pain in the gums, the Syrup immediately gives take by opening the pores and healing the gums; thereby reventing Convulsions, Fevers, &c.

IT IMPORTANT TO MOTHERS.—Children generally suffer much uncasiness from cutting their texth. Whatever dangerous or fatal symptoms attend the process of nature, they are produced invariably from the highly irritated and inflamed condition of the parts—therefore the principal indications of cure are to abate the inflammation, and to soften, scothe, and relax the gians. If that is effected, the inflant is preserved from sisequent fever, inflammation, spasmedic cough, tatching of tendons, croup, canker, and convulsions, deplaying their fatal consequences. If mothers, nurse, or guardians have their babes tortured with painful and protracted dentition, and this notice attracts their illention, they should not be deterred from purchasing a lottle of EVANS SOOTHING SYRUP for Children Teething, the incomparable virtue of which in completely relieving the most distressing cases (when applied to the infant's gums as directed) is invaluable. The remedy has restored thousands of children when on the verge of the grave, to the embraces again of their distracted parents, attacked with that awful and mortiferous malady—Convulsions.

DIRECTIONS.

PPlease shake the balle when first opened.

When children begin to be in pain with their teeth shocking in their gums, put a little of the Syrup in a leaspoon, and with the finger tet the child's gums be rubted for two or three minutes, three times and yellow in the painful operation of laseing through their gums, mothers should immodiately apply the syrup; it will prevent the children having a fever, and undergoing that painful operation of laseing the gums, which always makes the next tooth much harder to come thro' and sometimes causes death. Low spirits as a certain state of the mind, accompa-nied by indigs stion, wherein the greatest evils are ap-prehended upon the slightest grounds, and the worst consequences imagined. Ancient medical writers sup-

Ancient medical writers supposed this disease to be confined to those particular regions of the abdomen technically called hypochondria, which are situated on the right or left side of that cavity, whence comes the name hypochondriasis.

Symptems. The common corporeal symptoms are, flatulency in the stomach or bowels, acrid cructations, coativeness, spasmodic pains and often an utter inability of fixing the attention upon any subject of importance or engaging in any thing that demands vigour or courage. Also languidness—the mind becomes irritable, thoughtful, desponding, melancholy and dejected, accompanied by a total derangement of the nervous system. The mental foclings and peculiar train of ideas that haunt the imagination and overwhelm the judgment, exhibit an infinite diversity. The wisest and best of men are as open to this affliction as the weak-cet.

of the menses) or long continued cruption; relaxation or debility of one or more important organs within the abdomen is a frequent cause.

Treatment. The principal objects of treatment are,
to remove indirection, strengthen the body, and enliven

THE BARON VON HUTCHELER HERB PILLS.

These Pills are composed of Herbe, which exert a specific action upon the heart, give an impulse or strength to the arterial system; the blood is quickened and equalized in its circulation through all the vessels, whether of the skin, the parts situated internally, or the extremities; and as all the secretions of the body are drawn from the blood, there is a consequent increase of every secretion, and a quickened action of the absorbent and exhalent, or discharging vessels. Any morbid action which may have taken place is corrected, and obstructions are removed, the blood is purified, and the body resumes a healthful state.

and the body resumes a healthful state.

These Pills, after much anxious toil and research, having been brought by the Proprietor to the present state of perfection, supersede the use of the immerable other medicines; and are so well adapted to the frame, that the use of them, by maintaining the body in the due performance of its functions, and preserving the vital stream in a pure and healthy state, causes it to last many years longer than it otherwise would, and the mind to become so composed and tranquil, that old age when it arrives, well appear a blessing, and met (as too many who have neglected their conrtitutions, or had them injured by medicines administered by ignorance) a source of misery and abhorence.

They are so compounded, that by strengthening and equalizing the action of the heart, liver, and other viscera, they expel the bad, acrid or morbid matter, which renders the blood impure, out of the circulation, throthe excretory ducts into the passage of the bowels, to that by the brisk or slight evacuations, which may be regulated by the doses of the Ecrib Pills, always remembering that while the evacuations from the bowels are kept up, the excretons from all the other vessels of the body will also be going on in the same proportion, by which means the blood invariably becomes purified.

Steady perseverance in the use of the Herb Pills will undoubtedly effect a cure even in the most acute or ob-

POETRY.

From the Lycoming Gazette. On reviewing the traces of a path formerly used by a Tribe of Indians, now extinct.

Come silently, oh! softly tread, In twilight's gath'ring gloom The pathway press'd by mighty dead, Who fill the mould'ring to Come, for that hush'd and holy hour Breathes not of sad decay; Nor magic spell's resistless pow'r Tells of the pass'd away.

In fancy, then, grim, dusky trains Blend with the dark ning shade: In fancy, then, wild martial strains Ring through the leafy glade: Again we view the Indian brave. With noiseless tread go by,
Free as the breeze whose whisp'rings wave

Each eagle plume on high. And shudd'ring mark the fitful glow That lights each swarthy cheek, As the thrill whoop of coming foe Through the deep forests sweep: Mid the dark pathway peal, As the dusky warriors burning eg Glance on that foeman's steel. And when the roar of war is still,

Mark how their savage bosoms thrill, For it conducts them home. To that far home, so lone and wild, Where the lov'd Indian maid, The graceful wife, and smiling child, Sport through the sunny glade. To that far home where brightly shine Their . blazing council fire And 'neath the shade of rocking pine, Muse their stern haughty sires; That forest home, oh! where is now The spot so lone and dear? Where the dark forms, with lofty brow. That trod so proudly here? Gene! like a "shadow or a dream" Pass'd from the earth away; Gone! like the last bright golden beam That dies at closing day, Gone! but to fancy's ear still rings, Where these dark branches wave, MEXICO. AS IT WAS IN THE DAYS OF MONTE ZUMA.

When Hermando Cortez conquered Mexico in 1516 the city of Mexico contained a popula-tion of upwards of sixty thousand families. It was divided into two distinct parts, in one of which lived the nobility, and in the other the lower castes. The public edifices and the dwellings of the court and nobility were built of stone. The temples were magnificent. The one dedicated to Vitxpartzli, the god of war, and the most worshipped of all their delies, was the most spacious. Besides the dwelling of the pricets crected on the inside, and the great number of squarcs, it contained many for other inferior dei-ties to which the people had to pay homage on their entrance this great edifice would accommodate more than ten thousand persons who came to dance at their regular festivals. One of the squares was set out with trees, at regular distances, through which iron bars were passed, whereon were suspended the heads of victims who had been sacrificed to the gods. In another department was a large stone, terminating in veyance and possession of all his property, real, personal and mixed, (the necessary wearing apparel and bedding of himself and family excepted,) and certified the delivery into his possession of all the property of the into his possession of all the property of the man setting upon a high allar. His head was an acute angle, upon which the priest suspended the victim to be sacrificed, cut open his breast crowned with a helmet of burnished gold. In the right hand is held a serpent, and in the left a shield with four arrows. The countenance was most horrific. The priests slowly withdrew the curtains when they permitted the people to pay their adoration to the deity of their worship. On the left was another idol of a similar display and characteristic, pretending to be his brother, and equally an object of profound adora-

No one could approach the royal presence except being barefoot, with profound awe, and my great loard' uttered in a suppressed tone. When he dined in public, (which was frequent,) he sat by himself at a superb table; being first helped from his choice of two or three hundred dishes, and then leaving the rest to the nobility. He drank several kinds of liquors from richly orna-mented cans. The crowds were kept out by a rail. They could look on and see the royal gormandizing in the distance. Buffoons displayed themselves to amuse the royal eyes, and all sorts of music saluted the royal car. And then the people went to the public square, to wrestle, tezuma's prodigious wealth; besides he drew by usage about one third of the whole productive wealth of his subjects. The nobility were com-pelled to make him vast annual presents in person. The Emperor was the law in all things, and the slightest disrespect towards him cost the life of a subject. Every town in the empire had a regular militia; and it is even said that Montezuma had upwards of thirty vassals, from each of which he could have brought into the field one hundred thousand men.

DEPENDENCE OF THE INDIANS UPON THE BUFFALO.

I cannot convey any just impression of the total dependence of the remote western tribes on buffalo for their very existence, without giving a sketch of the various purposes for which that animal is, by their ingenuity, rendered available. First, their flesh is their principal, cometimes their only food, eaten fresh on the prairies during their hunt, and dried in their winter villages. Secondly, the skin is put to various uses; it forms the materials of their lodges, of their bales for packing the meat, of their bed by night and their clothing by day; the coarser parts they make into saddles, or cut into largettes or halters; and more than all, it is now their chief article of trade with the whites, and thus is the source whence they must derive blankets, knives, beads, and every other produce of civilization. Thirdly, they use the sinews as strings to their bows, and the smaller fibres instead of twine or thread; tho brains serve to soften and dress the skins; the hoof, at the end of the shank bone, is made to answer the purpose of a mallet. Fourthly, the bones are very useful; some of them being sor-viceable as acrapers or coarse chisels, others are pointed, and used with the finer fibres as needle and thread; and the ribs, strengthened by some of the strenger fibres, are made to furnish the how with which other buffalos are to be destroyed; this last is the triumph of Indian ingenuity. The first bow that I saw constructed in this manner caused so much surprise and admiration, that I offered nearly the value of a horse for it, but was refused. When I add to the foregoing particulars, that on the barren prairies the Indians frequently depend upon the buffalo for their fuel, and on its bladder for the means of carrying water, it will not be denied that the animal is essential to their existence; and where the buffalo is exterminated, the Indian of the prairies must perish .- Murray.

DR. WM. EVANS' CELEBRATED FEVER AND AGUE PILLS.

These pills, so admirably adapted to afford uniform relief in the different modifications of these distressing maladies, are particularly recommended to public notice. On the accession of the cold stage, when the face and limbs of the sufferer become pale, and the sensation of cold and languor is felt pervacing the whole system—their administration is accompanied with astonishing success—they soon lessen the subsequent distressing shivering and violent shaking, and by continuing in their use, (as directed) will ultimately cure the most obstinate ague. These pills are of signal utility in tiese distressing cases, where there is a sailowness of complexion, pain in the region of the liver, tension and distress in the epigaatic region. with other symptoms indicating the existence of morbid action, or chronic disease of the stomach, liver, bowols, mecentery or pleen, which consequences so generally supervens rpleen, which consequences so generally supervens from protracted intermittents. They permanently o-vercome these diseases—at the same time give tone to the stomach, cleanse and strengthen the lowels and im-room protracted interminents. They permanently overcome these discass—at the same time give tone to the stomach, cleanse and strengthen the bowels and impart health, vigour and energy to the system.

Many persons emigrate to the rich and fertile soil of the West, in the lope of sitaining a future competency, but alast ere long that hope becomes blasted, when they appear with inspaired and enfeebled constitutions, resulting from attacks of that direful terror of the West, Fever and Ague. If such persons had resorted to the use of the above pills, the sunken pallid countenance would have been restored to its florid hue, the vital energy re-established, and the whole system purified and invigorated. They are now regarded as an inestimable public blessing, and indispensable to the health, comfort, and even the local prosperity of the inhabitants of many portions of our western country.

In all cases of Bilious and Nervous Fever, Hypochondriacism, Low Spirits, Palpitations of the Heart, Nervous Irritability, Nervous Weskness, Floor Albus, Seminal Weskness, Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, Pains in the Side, Limbs, Heart, Stomach or Back, will invariably be removed by the use of the Pills.

On first feeling the premonitory symptoms occur, it is advisable at once to clear thoroughly the stomach and bowels. In no way can this be better and less inconveniently effected, than by taking a few doses of Dr. EVANS PURIFYING PILLS, the value and well-authenticated virtues of which medicine have been, and still are, too apparent to call for further comment. They tend to promote a healthy secretion of the Bile, and render the system capable of receiving with benefit the Invigorating and Strengthening Pills.

Directions are as follows:—Take four or more of the Purifying Pills on the first accession of Fever, and continue the same number every other night, till with the additional use of the Invigorating Pills in the morning, the states and continue the same number every other night, till with the additional use of the Invigorating additional use of the Invigorating Fills in the merning, three at neon, and three in the evening, on the days when the attacks do not occur.

The attacks usually occur every ether day.
