Delights of Being in the City.—The American of Sunday 3d contained the following: Mr. German H. Hunt and other gentlemen called on the Mayor on Saturday 2d and protested against the resolution which was passed in the First Branch on Monday, exempting Pimlico Avenue and Park Heights from the provisions of the law against fast driving. It was stated that some of the residents along the avenues used for fast driving favored annexation for the reason that they desired the tests of speed to be reason. of speed to be prohibited. They also stated that those instrumental in having the ordinance passed were not residents of the locality. THE JOURNEY OF A DONATION From New Market to Stewartstown on Very Cold Night During the Win-Come listen and I will try to rehearse.

Old Boreas was blowing a loud winter blast, The snow madly whirling around thick and fast, The moon and the stars shone keenly and bright. The streams ceased to murmur ice-buried from But undaunted by wind, the snow and cold weather, These veterans brave assembled together: Deep down in their hearts they loved their good May this love never cease nor suffer disaster.

In style very simple—unpoctic verse, The lights and the shadows that mantled a corps,

As its members on runners sped five miles or more.

Steeds, sleighs and sleds were in urgent demand, The former all harnessed, the latter well crammed, The bells on the horses sent out a wild jingle, The belles in the sleighs made stricken hearts tingle. Keen was the blast as they sped o'er the level Away they dashed forward not thinking of evil, As onward they glided a huge drift loomed up, The horses plunged in and a big sled got stuck. The driver was puzzled to know what to do,
But the team was strong and the horses all true.

As they slowly descended a perilous hill, At the foot of which rumbles the prophetic mill; ome feminine hearts mauifested alarm. Though snugly enclosed by a masculine arm.

A pair of male bipeds disdained to "go slow" These two luckless wights soon rolled in the snow, They struggled, they floundered, and made much But the worst feature of all, tore their lap robe Still onward all pressed over hill and through drift,

Defying the snow though it keenly did sift In eddles and whirls right into their faces; Thus flushing fair cheeks like flowers in vases. The journey is ended, the goal at last reached. And close to the fire in groups and in rows, Are many cold fingers and frost-stiffened toes. With comfort restored they rushed out of doors And brought in the good things by twos and by 'Twas a pleasant surprise to parson and spouse When the ample donations were all in the house. But no-I mistake-some went not this course. They had not forgotten the dapple gray horse, Well-filled sacks of oats and some full of corn Were conveyed to his bin inside of the barn. and then in a trice the table was spread And after the grace, O my! how they fed, Under its load the table first groaned,

But soon its dismantled condition bemoaned. Then music rang out in strains clear and sweet All hearts full of glee, but no shaking of feet, Thus the hours were spent in innocent joy, intainted by any debasing alloy. Old time does not tarry for mortals below, On the dial be signalled the hour to go. The last exercise was a parting refrain, And the parson's adieu was "please call again."

A Scrap from Baltimore County History-How Pikesville Received Its Name-Named in Honor of Gen. Albert Pike, a Brave Offi-cer of the War of 1813.—Perhaps it will be incer of the War of 1812.—Perhaps it will be interesting to the readers of the Journal, and particularly so to the residents of Pikesville, to know the origin of the name of their village, which is at present one of the healthiest and most pleasantly situated of any of the adjacent towns of Baltimore city. Govanatown Jottings .- Poor, frail, critical city humanity imagines Govanstown is not a manufacturing centre, because it falls to see a 60-foot smoke stack in every back yard. These narrowminded can't spli-over-your-shoestring specimens of the genus homo have evidently overlooked the big-heartedness and go-ahcadativeness of M.J. Kliroy, the king carriage builder of the South. His works here are running at their full capacity, and the output competes with the output of the world in design, finish and construction, the result of high grade material and the employment of well-paid, expert, skilled labor. We Govanstownites are proud of the works, and prouder of the man that produced them hat produced them The buds of the Ritter combination are bursting into bloom, and no ruthless hand dare pluck them.

Mr. Michael Brown is the most popular and the happlest man in town. It weighs fourteen pounds and its name is Annie.

Mr. Isaac Bell, formerly horseshoe fashioner at the junction of two of our boulevards, has offered his services to Uncle Sam, and they have been accepted. Should Bismarck indulge in any more of his Pacific demonstrations or diplomatic waltzes, Ike will proceed at once to Samoa and introduce the Govanstown lock-step, followed by the best wishes of the many friends he leaves behind him. In the meantime he will be stationed in California.

Mr. Wright in the act of jumping from the wagon fell and dislocated we believe never will be done, because stone is very scarce along its route after we get out of the valley, and we doubt very much whether the farmers of the valley feel themselves able at these pinching times to pay such a sum, or the tax-payers of the county willing to bear the burden, or the custodians of the county are desirous to make the appropriation and bear the responsibility, when, undoubtedly, it would have to be renewed every three or four years, and in some parts every year.

The exceptants, who strongly oppose this enterprise, are as strong advocates for good roads as the petitioners, and heartily endorse the macadamizing loss sustained by the fire, and a shrinkage of business, and a large line of bad debts; also losses by endorsing paper. It is thought that they may be able to effect a settlement and continue the business. The firm has the sympathy of the entire community, and it is to be hoped that they may be of the old and well-tried servant from the "Bazzar Corner" to St. Thomas Church, just four miles, and would cost about $10,000 We would then have one good turnpike from the valley instead of two mud roads, side by side, and 4½ miles less road for the county to keep up. There are no more farm houses in this part of the valley, nor no more acres to till, nor does it produces any more than it did 100 years.

When we pass above this cleared land we at once enter the beautiful and romantic gorge where the hills on either side are covered thick with laurel Ing of said road.

The farm of the late Hamilton Stump, and he was one of the respondents, was sold. Did it cause that to sell for a big price, and, if so, why is it the balance of that valuable property is not sold.

Robert H. Thompson, son of the late James W. Samuel his large estate in Green Spring Valley, and his other eight children fortunes in proportion.

The land along Gwynn's Falls (which source is between Glyndon and Reisterstown and extending along the railroad) is very marshy, and in places under water, especially along the Owings' Mills, as can be seen from the cars.

Mr. Phillips and Reese are live men; have made their mark; have set their stakes, drawn tueir lines, built and improved extensively and expensively to spit their ideas and now are the happy.

Robert H. Thompson, son of the late James W. Thompson for many years manager of the Union Mills, Ellicott city, died at his residence, 115 West Fourth street, in the "Belt," on the 4th inst., aged 52 years. Mr. Thompson was born at Patterson, New Jersey, in 1837. Mr. Thompson's father many years since was eugaged at the Union Mills, and removed to the factory store. He was subsequently invited to the management of the Union Mills. When the late line is the management of the Union Mills. When the late line is the management of the Union Mills. John H. Longnecker was elected Clerk of the Circuit Court he appointed Robert H. Thompson as his Equity Clerk, which position he occupied until Mr. Longnecker was legislated out of office by the Constitution of 1867, when Mr. Thompson resigned. He afterwards opened a general store in Towson, in the building new occupied by the Towson. Post in the building now occupied by the Towson Post Office. Upon the death of Mr. Thompson's father, Robert was invited to the management of the Union Mills, which he accepted, discharging the duty with the utmost fidelity and winning the confidence of the owners of the Mills and the respect and love of every owners of the mills and the respect and love of every operative. After eight years of service Mr. Thompson resigned the position. He then accepted the superintendency of the Suffolk and Carolina Railroad, where he contracted dysentery, it is supposed from the majorial condition of part of the line of the season. He returned home to reconverte his health from the maiarial condition of part of the line of the road. He returned home to recuperate his health, remaining two or three months. Returning to his duties he again became worse from his disease, which had become chronic, and which finally terminated fatally Mr. Thompson was a genial gentleman, a man of commanding presence, and handsome. He was the very soul of honor, lovable in his attachment, not demonstrative, but quiet and his attachments, not demonstrative, but quiet, and always the perfect gentleman. He was a member of Mount Moriah Lodge of Masons, lowson, and Centre Lodge of Odd Fellows, allicott City, both of which bodies were represented by pall-bearers.

The funeral took place on the 6th inst. from his residence, 115 West Fourth street, and was largely attended. Services were conducted at the house at noon by the Rev. W. A. Hooper, of New Jersey, who spoke of the manly qualities of the deceased and of his faithfulness in positions of great trust. He also feelingly referred to the exemplary private and Christian character of Mr. Thompson. The Rev. Wm. Durant, of Boundary Avenue Presbyterian Church, and Rev. A. D. McClure, of the Maryland Avenue Presbyterian Church, assisted in conduct Avenue resoycerian Unuren, assisted in conducting the services. The honorary pall-bearers were R. M. Wylie, Col. D. G. McIntosh, Capt. H. C. Gansey, John. S. Gittings, Wm. M. Isaac and ex-Judge Richard Grason. The active were Wm. H. Ruby, R. Edwim Hook, George D. Barton, Chas. L. Hartley, Wm. T. McCauley and R. A. Martin. Among those who were present at the funeral services were hose who were present at the funeral services were Rev. Henry Brauch, George Poole, Rev. George W. Feelemyer, Wm. H. Bosley, W. W. Kernan, of Philadelphia, Pa.: Fred Hubbell, W. H. Martin, Joseph Billmyer, Hugh Cooper, Hugh Bone, John Startzman and James M. Johnston. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful, one a solid wreath of roses from the President and Board or Directors of the Suffolk and Calolina Railroad, of which line Mr. Thompson was General Superintenden. The remains were interred in Loudon Park

The petition for the opening of Bonita Avenue is the programy of some of this class of gentlemen, and, indeed, they are so kind and considerate in their doings and interested in their neighbors' success that they have about concluded that as long as old man Phillips and Reese and Cockey, among the rest, have been living in this world in utter darkness and ignorance, and not yet capable of taking care of themselves or their property, and that they are actually in need of a protector of some kind, have really come forward, and, according to law and Scripture, without consulting at all either of the old gentlemen have determined that their fences should be moved, their lands should be dried, their furrows and their crooked ways made straight, and that they stand in need of another Mrs. Elizabeth G. Killed by a Horse.—On Tuesday morning, 5th inst., Mr. Frank Walker, aged 36 years, who lived near St. Mary's Industrial School, was found dead between the stable and dwelling by his father. It appears that young Walker had come some time during the night from Baltimore. He drove out home in his buggy, and reached there about 11 o'clock. He took the horse to the stable, and evidently unharnessed him. The buggy was standing where the young man had left it when he unhitched the horse. The horse was roaming around the field. On the young man's head was a deep cut. This led some of his friends to think that he had been murdered. Upon examining the cut more closely it was found that it had been made by a kick from the horse. There is no doubt that while a kick from the horse. There is no doubt that while he was unharnessing the horse the animal kicked him in the head, and his death followed. A jury of inquest was summoned, and the verdict of death from accident was rendered. Walker was about 33 years old. His habits were good.
