BALTIMORE COUNTY PUBLIC SCHOOL

The question of the amount due Baltimore county by Baltimore city on account of our public school property, chemical engines, station houses, lamps, etc., taken by Baltimore city under the "Belt" bill is a very important one, and has given our County Commissioners and School Commissioners much trouble. For several months the question has been mooted between the two Boards as to the amount the Public Schools should receive out of the $106,-000 due Baltimore county, but not yet paid. It is believed, however, that the matter is approaching a settlement, and that both bodies will be satisfied when it is consummated .-There is a prevalent idea that the School Board is in debt to an amount over $30,000, but this is not correct. For many years past a short age has existed in the funds of the School Board, produced from yearly and urgent demands made for new school houses, and also from an insufficiency in each levy to cover the running and other expenses absolutely necessary consequent upon the constant increase of pupils and general expenses. When the end of a quarter would arrive there would be little or no money in the treasury. In order to pay the teachers | good for return trip until March 7th, at $1.20. and meet other demands upon the Board the sum of $30,000 or over would be borrowed. Before the end of the next quarter would roll around the $30,000 would be paid from receipts | 25th to March 4th, valid for return trip until from the County Commissioners and from the Comptroller on account of State School tax. Thus matters have gone on for several years. The public can thus see that the School Board has, practically, no debt, in the full acceptation that that word would imply. But, for all practical purposes, it might be regarded as such. What the School Board desires is, that the County Commissioners turn over to them so much of the money coming from Baltimore city as will obviate this necessity for borrowing and allow the School Board a reasonable sum for building school houses, now clamored for by the people from all parts of the county. This, it is believed, the County Commissioners

The amount that it will require to run the schools to the end of their fiscal year, Septemcover all sums for running purposes due on that date. The aggregate of the different amounts asked for by delegations from all parts of the county for new school houses is $25,000. The amount levied for school purposes in levy of award was made, over ninety days after the 1888 was $125,000. The amount drawn by the School Board is $83,000, leaving a balance due of $42,000. From conferences recently held between the two Boards, it is believed the whole matter is nearing a settlement. On the 20th inst. the following letter was sent to the County Commissioners: OFFICE OF THE BOARD OF SCHOOL COMMISSIONERS) OF BALTIMORE COUNTY, MASONIC TEMPLE, TOWSON, Feb. 20th, 1889.

To the Honorable Board of County Commissioners for Baltimore County:
Gentlemen:—Recognizing the necessity for ar early settlement with Baltimore city authorities o ir indebtedness to the county for property be onging to the county, and now within the city, a President of the Board of School Commissioners for Baltimore County I wish to assure you that I d not believe any delay will be occasioned on the part of the School Board in making the title to all city, whenever your Honorable Board may desire the execution of said deeds, as we fully recognize the fact that we can only keep the schools in opera-tion as long as you furnish funds sufficient therefor. Very Respectfully Yours, &c., SAMUEL M. RANKIN.

A CURIOUS "MARRIAGE."

The "marriage" (!) that recently took place at Federal Hill, Harford county, Md., between Catharine Beall and a E. Hanna Calder, of that place, seems to have stirred up quite an excitement, and the Baltimore papers especially have given columns to the elucidation of the queer affair. Mr. Lemuel Beal has made the following statement:

"My daughter, Catherine Beall, aged 18 years, left home Tuesday afternoon 5th inst, with Hanna Cal der. They went to Baltimore, arriving in the city at 9.45 o'clock Tuesday | ight. After my daughter's departure I learned that she had been married to Calder on September 5th, 1888, by the Rev. J. A. Frederick, of Pt. Mary's Catholic Church, at Clermont Mills, Harford county. The marriage license was procured in saltimore on May 30th, and was issued to E. Hanna Calder for the marriage of E. Hanna Calder, aged 37 years, of Harford county, to Catherine Beall, aged 18 years. The marriage was performed at the parsonage at Clermont, and Caler, who had hitherto always worn dresses, was arrayed in trousers and a Prince Albert coat. After the marriage ceremony my daughter returned home, and nothing was known of the wedding until she left home on last Tuesday."

Medical books refer to cases where men have supposed themselves females, and vice versa, caused, it is believed, from a malformation.-They are curious cases, but it the more often transpires that the condition of the sexes is basely simulated by men, rarely by women. Rev. Father Frederick, who seems to have been fully aware of all the circumstances, was certainly, not sufficiently cautious. Under the circumstances, no marriage of that character should have been solemnized, no matter what the urgency; and the greater the urgency the greater the reason for its non-performance. All the facts in this curious case eminently prove that there should be some well-defined law as to marriage, recognized by the laws of Maryland, at least. No marriage should be allowed to be solemnized except after due publicatian of the bans, as the right of the entailment of property is intimately contingent upon every marriage. Our courts are now filled with cases where the rights of property are sought to be maintained, the result of ill-advised and secret marriages. In a few years, sometimes a few months, divorce is sought from various causes, but all tending to prove selves from their seats. It is alleged that the God." The object of this correspondence be- Millin, from the Ways and Means Committee that much wretched conjugal life and prurient exposures which corrupt the community,

Republicans and Independents intended to the College E-oterio, in furtherance of what is bill, with the cotton, metal and chemical could be prevented by a due publicity of the bans, which might have the effect of preventing just such mock "marriage" as has taken place, evidently, between two females. Marriage being a civil contract, and not religious one, there is no reason why it should be consummated by a minister of any religious denomination any more than by a recognized representative of the law. There certainly can be no objection to the minister of any religious denomination being authorized to sol- and reported for the JOURNAL by C. A. Present indications foreshadow the most brilliant inaugural demonstration ever known on the installation of President-elect Harrison, March 4th next. The entire country is interested in the event, and every State of the Union will be represented in the grand parade. Civilians, military, civic, and political bodies will make this the greatest pageant ever seen in the National Capital. The ball will be one of the most brilliant affairs of the kind ever held, and the entire demonstration will be conducted on a scale of magnificence never before attempted. Thousands of people will visit Washington during this period as participants or spectators, and the Pennsylvania Railroad Company is making preparations to carry them there, and return them in the promptest and most satisfactory manner. It will undoubtedly be the beaviest job ever undertaken by the company, yet with enormous equipment, excellent facilities, and masterly management, the task will se accomplished to the satisfaction of all. For the day proceeding and that succeeding the 4th, the rails leading into Washington will be hot with thousands of wheels, and as all trains will be run in as many sections as the demands of travel require, their will be between New York and Washington a continual procession of ocomotives and cars moving steadily forward to their destination. In order to utilize all the cars, and to prevent any blockage of the tracks, no cars will be stored on the sidings in or near Washington as other lines propose to do. The trains will be kept moving all the time, and having deposited their contents in the centre of the city the. cars will be immediately run back, to be again loaded with a part of the vast throng which will crowd into all the stations of the company. In this manner the work will be done promptly and effectively, and the great number of trains will enable every one to reach the capital at a reasonable

It has been a work of patient inquiry, which most men would have shrunk from. His determined research through musty records, some of them one hundred years old, and tradition well on to two thousand years, stamps him as a man who quailed not under the task. His constant labor, much of it at night, impaired his eyesight to such degree that he was required to desist, and finally the loss of an eye was the result. This he contributed in his love for the craft. He returned to the task, however, resclved to finish it .--Whilst much of the history is compiled from records of the early operations of the craft, nevertheless Mr. Schultz has interspersed his work with a liberal amount of lofty sentiment of the noble deeds of the most ancient and prominent secret organization the world has ever known. ## HALF RATES TO WASHINGTON. Via Pennsylvania Railroad, Allowing Stop-Off in Baltimore.

In order to afford visitors to the inauguration all possible privileges, and at the same time give them the benefit of the very low rates which have been fixed for this occasion, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will sell excursion tickets to Washington on February 25th, 26th, 27th, 28th, March 1st, 2d, 3d and 4th, from all stations on its system, at a single fare for the round trip. These tickets will admit of a stop-off in Baltimore in either or both directions, thus enabling passengers by this route to visit both cities. The return coupons of the excursion tickets are valid for use until and including March 7th. This rate, in view of cent service which the Pennsylvania Railroad affords, is the lowest ever offered under similar circumstances. BALTIMORE, February 22d, 1889. It might, perhaps, be considered disrespectful the Father of Our Country to make use of this date without endeavoring to make some suitable acknowledgment of his greatness. But if it should happen to be true, as some people would try to persuade us, that the spirits of the departed, when freed from the burden of the flesh, still linger around the scenes of their earthly carees, and are aware of the events that continue to take place, it is more than probable that by this time General Washington must be wearled beyond endurance by the trib. utes of respect to his memory which have been scattered down the last century, like those ragments of rice-paper which flutter along the course of a Chinese funeral. So that, in such case, he is now, doubtless, prepared to endorse very vigorously the patriotic sentiment: "Milions for defense" from such attentions; "hut not one cent for tribute," of any description, hereafter.

clude that unless this illustrious spirit was obliged to remain in this mundans region, he must ong ago have betaken himself to some other ection of the universe, where he would not be obliged to listen to the changes rung upon his name and fame until he was driven in desperation to wish that he had never been born into the world at all; or that he had been wise enough to lead a life of inefficiency by which he would escape notoriety; or else that he had peen courageous enough to perform some cowardly deed that would consign his memory to the restful shades of an everlasting oblivion. It is true of the most of us, however, that we would endeavor to live very differently if we could only forsee the lasting results of our actions. But the General will not have lived to no purpose, if the fact of his being talked about down to the present day, shall serve as a warning through all time to the hosts of his beloved countrymen. If, however, the spirit of our glorious Washington has been but reposing among the soul-

But, on the other hand, it is quite safe to con

alcepers throughout the last century; or if, by the chances of spiritual warfare, it has been detained with the other "spirits in prison" of whom our classics tell, what marvolous revela tions we could make to him if he were permitted to return to earth to celebrate with us his own approaching centennial! What a country he would find, compared with the land that he left when he closed his eyes upon the scenes of mortality! What a wide extent of territory we have gained, and what millions of diverse races now people it! How amazed he would be at the vastness of our agricultural operations; at our great cities, with their achievements in architecture, and all their advantages in the way of educational opportunities, luxurious elegance, and all the rest of it! How he would stare at our railroads, and steamships, our telegraphs and telephones, and all the complicate and wonderful machinery of our various facto-

Oh no; let Washington stay where he is, even though his condition may not be a comfortable one; it could only make him supremely miserable to see how far away from its moorings the grand Republic. whose ends he worked so hard to shape, now seems to be inevitably drifting.

The sermon by Bishop Potter, in this city on last Sunday afternoon, had for its text the story of one Simon who bewitched the people of Samaria with his sorceries, which he made them believe were wrought by "the great power of God." And the arguments of the sermon ran along the line that although we might fancy in this enlightened age that we have quite outgrown such fallacies as sorceries and kindred superstitions, there is yet considerable element, among the people of to-day, which is ready to accept any sort of irrational theory that our modern Simons see proper to advance. The Bishop said that in Boston, the intellectual centre of this continent, one could find in the Sunday papers the advertisements of about forty places in that town where the several varieties of such theories are propagated.

And according to the Bishop's showing, the distinctive feature which these delusions possess in common, is a quality which he calls "externalism." At first view it scarcely seems appropriate to apply such a term to spiritual ism, or mesmerism, or other processes which claim to deal especially with the mental powers of man; but its propriety appears when we consider that these so-called sciences make no claim to work by processes which can be oxplained to the intellect, and rendered convincng to the logical powers of the human mind: but that they all do deal with matters that are appreciable by the senses, and all aim to obtain control of the senses, and to produce effects which will be cognizable by the senses. Which is, of course, a very remarkable, as well as a highly important distinction, though it is one which does not seem to have occurred to most persons before. For though the Bishop did not explicitly state the fact, but only lef t to be inferred, it goes without saying that the hings pertaining to the senses, are the things pertaining to the beast, in humanity; and, tence, all these latter-day developments of subects connected with the senses full very easily into the line of that development of the beast which the Scriptures have predicted as one of the occurrences to take place at the close of the present dispensation of grace. Thus, this one

And just at this very moment we have some new wonders in the field of spiritualism to chrouicle. Living with her parents, up town on Carey street, there is said to be a young girl, Annie Stidham by name, who is a very powerful spiritual medium. We are told that she does not need the cover of darkness for her performances, but that she simply sits quiet, is brightly lighted room, and waits for the spirits to come and take possession of her form. And so extreme is the "externalism" in this case that the spirits which control her are said to change her appearance utterly and make their own faces appear instead of hers, whatever may be their age or condition. She also becomes externally rigid as cast iron, or limp as wet paper. as the case may demand. And furthermore it the liberal conditions it bears and the magnifi- is asserted that this delicate young girl has powers of lifting and moving heavy bodies which quite discount those of the famous Miss paper stories. But, of course, it is the culture of Boston nagazine published there, surprisingly illustrates the case with which the modern Simon ion, and for the immediate expenses of start-Secret Scientific Association proposes to establish "a laboratory wherein the pupils of the internal revenue law. College can experimentally acquire the sum of knowledges, and make themselves familiar with the content of science from a new standpoint." Furthermore: "To gain access to this higher scientific knowledge, all that will be required will be to enter the College; and to gain access to the secrets and the higher laws, it will be required to master the course of Culture four additional enrolling clerks for the remain given in the College; and to eliminate the der of the session. This is preparing for the evils; and to make complete dedication of your | rush of bills that always get crowded through ife and all you have to the higher guidance." But this Secret Scientific Association is not permitted "to entrust its more important secrets to others than those who are incapable of evil. as it "would cease to receive from the universal source the knowledges necessary for the coninvation of its special work among the people if it were to do so in sny one instance." But the most remarkable point of the case is | the rest. the fact that appended to this novel prospectus appear no less than ninety-six responses, received in two weeks' time, from "physicians, ministers, editors, professional and literary peoole," from farmers and workmen, scattered quire knowledges and powers, and to be initiated into mysteries; confessing to the "strange, the entire dedication;" and offering lands and other possessions, besides their services for life, to the furtherance of this grand movement! The rehearsal of this wonderful story makes one feel as though our whole nineteenth century civilization were slipping away from our grasp. Of what avail is our popular education,

February 16th, 1889.

To MARYLAND JOURNAL: It is needless to say that Colorado is a wo derful State in its varied and rich resources progress and wealth. It is equally unnecessar to say that the growth of Denver, her capita and commercial metropolis is phenomenal, and at the same time its wonderful advance in business and wealth is solid, substantial and on an undoubted healthy commercial basis. In evidence of these premises I present for the consideration of your readers some of the undisputed business facts and figures concerning her history for the past two or three years. In doing this, of course, a great many that might be stated will necessarily be left out.-The products of the mines of Colorado for the year 1887 were in the aggregate $24,000,000, which went up to $36,550,000 in 1888. This does not include large quantities of ore which went to smelting works in Omaha and Kansas

City. The value of the different metals are,

for the year 1888, as follows: Ounces of gold 198,627, valued at $3,105,519; ounces of silver. 18,209,227, valued at $25,662,000; tons of lead, 65,529, valued at $6,940,000; pounds of copper, 961,548, valued at $193,847. The promise of the year 1889 is that the increase in the product or this will be greater than that for 1888. Leaving out the value of the precious metals that went through the smelters of Denver in 1888, the value of the city's manufactures reached the enormous sum of $32,214,142, and these manufacturing establishments employ 7.000 men. And this does not include any o the machine shops that are run and operated by the sixteen railroad lines that centre here. And yet it is considered that Deuver is only in her infancy as a manufacturing point, destined o take large strides in her progress and growth. There are fourteen carriage and wagon manufacturies employing 150 men and with an outout of $300,000 in manufactured materials.— The stone-dressing business amounted to $1,-500,000 for 1888, including almost every species of stone to be found. The Rockies are exceedingly productive of stone of varied character and inexhaustible in extent. Red sandstone of excellent quality is shipped to Chicago, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Kansas City and even to New York to build handsome residences for the millionaires of those leading cities of the American Union. There is the attractive gray | guests. granite, the blue and brown lime stone. the marble of varied colors and the lava stone, all of which are to be found in inexhaustible quantities and qualities as varied as taste can lesire. One can see fine houses and public given:

The furniture manufacturers put forth a product of $300,000 worth of material during the year just past. The pickle factories made at wholesale prices $250,000 worth of this article of consumption, and notwithstanding all this the city is by no means sour or of acid temperament. And yet the breweries of the city have a pay roll that takes $200,000 and furnishes the citizens $1,250,000 in the malt liquid they pour forth. More than three-quarters of a million s done in the line of bookbinding and lithographing. The cracker and cake business is very extensive. The brass and iron fitting es. E. B. Stuart, the commander of the cavalry of tablishment put out last year $500,000 worth of | Gen. Lee's Army, having been killed about one product against $275,000 for 1887. The report | month before this battle, Gen. Hampton sucailding Inspector shows that in 1888 there were $6,049,386 expended in new buildings, including one business block which cost $212,000. Nearly $3.000,000 were expended in brick and stone dwellings. This building enterprise shows that its cost of 1888 was $2,000. 000 more than for the year 1887, or an advance buildings of commanding presence and artistic structure constructed of these varied products of the geological formation of these mountains

Besides having a tramway line of electric motor cars now in full running order and having nearly ten miles of track, the Denver Cable Company has issued bonds to the extent of $3,-000,00°, and all of them taken and negotiated by Tauter & Holt in New York city, with which they are constructing another motor line .-Their power house is in progress of construction and some of their track laid, and they expect to have the line in full operation by the first of next October. The track will be about 15 miles in length, and as they have the exclusive franchise for the horse car lines of the city of Denver, it is their intention to have the horse cars appended to the ends and sides of this new line as feeders to it wherever it is practical to do so. The whole is under the management of Col. Geo. E. Randolph, a very courteous and affable gentleman. The bonds of of 50 per cent.

the Company pay 6 per cent. and are a safe investment. The coal fields here are inexhaustible. No two States in the Union contain the deposit of coal that Colorado does, and at Trinadad, in the southern part of the State, a ton of anthracite coal can be bought in the market for the trifle of 85 cents. It is delivered and put in coal houses in Denver for $4 per ton. A test made between this Colorado anthracite and that of Pennsylvania and other coals shows a decided superiority of the Colorado coal. The test was made by C. H. Terry, Chief Engineer of the United States Mint at San Francisco. California, and the tests developed the fact that 19 per cont. of the Pennsylvania coal was waste, while only 15 per cent. of the Colorado coal was waste, and as far as my observation goes there is much less cinder and slate in the coal here than at home. The coal in use in Denver seems to go all to smoke and ashes. Little or no cinder or coke or any other substance is found in the ashes. There is no clinker to clog the lining or grate of the stoves.

Nothing perhaps indicates the growth of the business of the city more than the increase that marks the business of the Post Office. In 1887 the receipts were $160,656.35. In 1888 they were $190,412.30. Money orders for 1887 were $29,720, and 1688 $34,748. Registered letters for 1887 $29,684; for 1888 $34,481. Now the vast area of country, exclusive of the mining interests that surround Denver, is calculated to accelerate her growth in wealth and prosperity to an extent that baffles calculation. Omaha is 500 miles to the north, Kansas City 639 miles to the east, and there is no other city of sufficient magnitude nearer than these to compete with Denver as the commercial centre and depot for all this vast region, making a circuit of at least 300 miles. The mining and agricultural interests thus surrounding this "Queen City of the West," must, for years to years. come, as these interests increase in development and wealth, give her an unfold impetus and growth that will at no distant day give her a quarter of a million poplation and wealth that will rival any other city of the size on the American continent. THE CONFEDERATE RE-UNION.

The Annual Re-union of the Confederate Societies of Maryland was held in the Academy of Music, Baltimore, on next Friday evening. 22d inst., on which occasion Gen. Thomas L. Rosser, of Virginia, delivered an address. The Annual Banquet of the Society of the Army and Navy of the Confederate States in Maryland took place on the same evening at the Carrollton Hotel. Generals Wade Hampton, of South Carolina, A. H. Colquit, of Georgia, Chas. E. Hooker, of Mississippi, Charles Wheeler, of Kentucky, M. C. Butler, of South Carolina, and Cols. Geo. D. Wise and Charles O'Ferrall. of Virginia, were present as guests

The Committee of Arrangements, Messrs. James R. Wheeler, August Simon, M. B. Brown, R. J. Stinson and W. H. Fitzgerald, were indefatigable in their exertions to make these affairs pleasant to the members and their

of the Society.

The address of Gen. Rosser was a masterly affair, and he did full justice to his subject. A short account of this struggle is herewith

"The battle of Trevilian Station, Virginia. was fought in June, 1864, by the combined cavalry of the Army of Northern Virginia, under Gen. Wade Hampton, and the cavalry of the Army of the Potomac, under Gen. P. H. Sheridan, and was the hardest fought cavalry engagement of the late war. It lasted two or three days and resulted in the total defeat of Sheridan's cavalry, although Sheridan had largely the superior force in numbers. Sheridan's forces retired to the main body of the Federal Army under Gen. Grant, by whom It had been sent to raid in the rear of General Lee's Army. General Hampton displayed great skill in concentrating his cavalry, intercepting Sheridan's march and detesting him. Gen. J.

A GOOD REASON FOR REMOVAL. A. P. Edgerton, lately removed by President Cleveland as one of the Civil Service Commissigners, is out in a lengthy letter of two columns, making a bitter attack upon the President for the removal. The prevish petulance with which Mr. Edgerton attacks the President is probably the best reason for his removal, though it was done in the expiring hours of the administration. The letter is full of common, coarse invective, and not likely to be noticed by the President.
