

a bottle of Rum; and Madam Calbott saying she had a mind to eat some Oysters out of a pitee she had by which she had formerly tasted off, desired the Examint. to putt ashore at the North point of Rappahaunock River to gett some oysters till they came back, which was done; and on Wednesday morning about Sun rise the Examinant wished to goe to the other side to look for his company which he thought (and so too Mad^m Calbott) might be drunk at the Ordinary, staying so long as they did, but just as the Sucker was a speak to the Dep^t. sspied a Canoe coming about the point (viz the North point where he lay) and then he told Mad^m Calbott he saw the Canoe coming, and suddenly after he sspied four of them in the Canoe, whereof he advised Mad^m Calbott, and was inquisitive to know how the fourth man the Stranger should gett ashore again, Mad^m Calbott then said, what? is his Course come then? and thereupon came out of the Cabin, and spoke first to the new Hand aboard, and presently replied to what he said, It may be the (meaning the Stranger) will goe for Maryland; So: soone as the Canoe came on board they made her fast, and the people all four of them stopt into the Skullop, And the Examinant hoisted up sayles, and came out to y^e mouth of the River, and the wind having been out of the way for eight or ten daies, Mad^m Calbott bid him the Examint. bore away for the Eastern Shore, w^{ch} he did, and stood all along the shore untill they came against Hoopers Island, and then Mad^m Calbott told the Examint. that they could not see him over to the Western Shore for fear the wind should be out of y^e way, and they were willing to keep the Eastern Shore because of the convenience of the harbours. Philip Murry made answer again, Mad^m! Rog^r has business at the Eastern Shore for some week he said he was to have when he came away from Lattoupe, upon which Mad^m Calbott said, Rog^r since you have business here it will not be much hindrance to you, but if your stay be any thing long for want of a passag^e, I will satisfy you for his time till you gett over. So: Mad^m Calbott, with three other people and his
