Marco Bozzaris.
Soon after Fitz-Greene Halleck had published his stirring "Hail to the Heroes," who was Marco Bozzaris? "Well," said Mr. Halleck, despondently, "what's the use of becoming martyrs for liberty or of poets celebrating heroes if ladies won't even inform themselves about the events of the day?"

The remembrance of another incident connected with the poem never failed to elicit a groan from its author. At a certain dinner party at which he was present, it was expected that each man should sing a song or make a speech. Among the guests was a Dutch Jew, whose English was execrable, and he had been previously persuaded by a joker to commit the whole of Marco Bozzaris to memory that he might recite it to the gratification of the poet and the poet's friends.

The day came and the Dutchman was called upon to speak. "Shentlemans," said he rising, "I can neither make de speech nor sing de song, but I will do my best to do de best I can." He proceeded relentlessly to do, and Halleck, when he heard his harmonious measures delivered in a mixture of English and Dutch, was divided between the temptation to laugh and cry. —Youth's Companion.

He Reckoned He Would Run.
One of the most interesting characters in American history is General Zachary Taylor, "Old Rough and Ready" hero of Buena Vista, who in 1845 was elected President of the United States. We all recollect how Daniel Webster sneered at him, before he was nominated, as a "backwoods colonel," and refused to let his friends put him on the ticket for vice president with Taylor for first place, thereby missing his last and, as the sequel showed, best chance of becoming president. Millard Fillmore, of New York, took the despised second place and thereby had nearly three years in the White House.

General Sherman used to tell an amusing little story of Taylor and his nomination for the presidency. At that time General Taylor was stationed at New Orleans. He was a Kentuckian and the Kentuckians were very properly proud of him. One day shortly before the convention met at Baltimore he was approached at New Orleans by an old Kentucky friend, who said: "General, we want you to run for president."

"General, we want you to run for president," asked General Taylor seriously. "Why, we do—all your old neighbors." "Well, then, if that's the case," replied the old hero, without changing the expression of his face, "I reckon I'll have to run." —Detroit Free Press.

Finishing His Bride.
In one part of the Canton of Ticino a very quaint marriage ceremony prevails. The bridegroom dresses in his "Sunday best," and accompanied by as many friends and relatives as he can muster for the forego to claim his bride. Finding the door locked he remonstrates with the bride, and she, in reply, he solicits the hand of his chosen maiden. If his answer be deemed satisfactory he is successively introduced to a number of matrons and maids, some perhaps deformed and some otherwise ugly. Then he is presented to some large dolls, all of which he rejects with scorn, amid general merriment. The bewildered bridegroom, whose impetuosity and temper are now sorely tried, is then informed that his lady is absent and invited in to see for himself.

He rushes into the house and searches from room to room until he finds her in her bridal dress, ready to go to church. Then are his troubles over and his state as a benedict assured. —Swiss Republic.

Trying to Buy Back His Own Body.
This queer story comes from Massachusetts: A man who lives in a suburb of Lowell is seeking to have a deed given by him, especially at Lowell, placed on the deed conveyed his body to a surgeon now practicing in Great Falls, N. H., for the sum of ten dollars and other considerations, possession to be taken on his death. Since the deed was made the giver has made a fortune in South America and has decided that he would like a Christian burial. The deed provides that the body shall be dissected and the skeleton articulated and presented to a medical university. The lawyers have decided that the deed is good and that the only alternative is to buy off the doctor. The giver of the deed has made a big offer, but it has been refused. —Hartford Courant.

Instinct of the Messenger Pigeon.
Upon what the messenger pigeon's wonderful faculty of finding its way homeward over great distances depends, opinions differ. Some ascribe it to an exercise of highly developed intelligence, and to an almost inconceivable perfection of sight, and yet others to instinct or intuition. The fact of the matter is, it is one of those mysteries of nature that perhaps never will be revealed, and stands side by side with the action of the grise or young salmon, which finds its way back unerringly to the same stream that it left nearly three years before as a tiny par. —Denver Republican.

Cigars a Foot Long.
The largest cigar actually smoked is by the better class of the Philippine Islands, especially at Lonon. It is placed end for the universal habit of smoking, practiced by all classes, ages and sexes. It is no uncommon thing to meet respectable islanders puffing away at cigars a foot in length and thick in proportion. —Boston Globe.
