THE GOVERNOR'S ACTION.

Governor Brown's reasons for declining to approve the Hayes assessment bill are given in full elsewhere. Whatever differences of opinion may exist at the present time, every one who is aware of the facts in the case believes that the Governor has acted conscientiously. No one recognizes more fully than he the demand of the people of rural Maryland for a new assessment. It will be remembered, however, that up to the very closing hours of the late legislative session it seemed as if no assessment bill could be agreed upon. Almost at the last moment the measure of Mr. Hayes appeared. It possessed the advantage of freedom from some features which in any bill would have been condemned, but that was all the average legislator knew. It is questionable that a member of either house had seen a printed copy of the Hayes assessment bill before adjournment. The thing then had to be taken largely on faith, and the responsibility of duly considering the bill in detail was shifted from the legislative to the executive department.

The ordeal was a trying one to the Governor, and it does not seem just that the legislature should have placed him in such a position. He accepted the situation, however, and listened patiently to every body who desired a say in the matter. It is noteworthy that the advocates of the bill, as passed, did not come out in strong force to off-set the tremendous representation made by the opponents of the measure.

After patient inquiry the Governor took the ground that, sorely as reassessment was needed, the Hayes bill would make bad worse. Two wrongs can never make a right, and the fact that the present condition works certain injustice to some, would not, he thought, warrant a measure which he felt would work greater injustice to others.

The hardships of the contemplated law doubtless would not have been felt had the question been merely one of State taxation. Whether just or not, the smallness of the State tax rate—only 17¼ cents on the $100—would prevent any great outcry were it made applicable to every species of property, tangible or intangible, personalty in the form of securities or real estate. It is as to the matter of local taxation that complaint of injustice comes. In Baltimore City the local tax rate has been nearly $2 on the $100, something unheard of in the counties. To pay such a tax on a four per cent. bond takes just half its annual yield. Such a tax does not bear so heavily on a business that may be yielding annually a profit of from twenty per cent. upward. And then, generally, the latter property is owned by those who are active and pushing and could bear even heavier burdens, while securities, yielding a small rate of interest, are extensively held for the beneficiaries of estates, widows and orphans, who are not capable of entering the fierce yet lucrative competition of business activity. It was in recognition of this inequality that the amendment to the constitution, defeated last fall, was proposed, so that a just classification of property could be legally made, and thereupon based some effectual law to reach every class of property without resort to pains and penalties and other relics of the days when men were imprisoned for debt.

The Hayes bill was intended especially to reach securities and the like and tax them just as any other property. As previously stated by THE TIMES, and truly said by the Governor, the property sought is located chiefly in Baltimore. The reaching of it might make a heavy reduction of the city tax rate. But this would not help the county taxpayer, except to the extent of a few cents reduction of the State tax rate. The heaviest tax rates in counties as well as in cities are local. County tax rates are usually four, five or even six times as great as that of the State. If, by some Utopian scheme, State tax rates could be wiped entirely out of existence, as an assessment bill could never do, yet the heaviest part of the farmer's tax bill, that for county taxes, would remain. Even if the Hayes bill had reduced local taxation in Baltimore, eighty or ninety cents on the $100, the farmer would not have been benefited even so much as eight or nine cents on the $100 in his State tax bill. And if the assessment showed depreciated land values in the counties, as it is claimed in some instances it would, higher county tax rates would have been apt to follow. The good to be accomplished then did not seem sufficient to warrant the injury that the Hayes bill might work in Baltimore city, particularly just upon the dawn of a new era of industrial progress.

With all these considerations before him, and with the hope that the people of Maryland will see to it that a constitutional convention shall be called to accomplish what patching and tinkering can never effect, the Governor withheld his sign manual from the assessment bill.

We regret exceedingly the circumstances which necessitated his course, but it is probable that ultimately neither the Governor nor the people will have occasion to regret his decision. At any rate whenever his fellow-farmers of the State feel disposed to criticise His Excellency, Farmer Frank can point to $1,000,000 which he has saved the State by the exercise of the veto power.

A TIMELY LETTER.

In another column is a communication from a friend who signs himself "Highland." It must impress the reader as a most sensible and timely article. It is in line with what THE TIMES has said repeatedly.

No more loyal adherents to what is latterly termed Cleveland Democracy, but which is more properly styled Jeffersonian Democracy, can be found than the good people of the State of Maryland in general and of Howard county in particular. Whatever platform might be formulated by the Democracy of this State would necessarily be a Cleveland platform, or what is the same, a Jefferson platform. We should be proud to march under the standard which Grover Cleveland might bear aloft just as we did in 1884 and 1888. It is no treason to him, however, and certainly not to the great Democratic hosts, that we should thrill with exultation at the prospect of the party's choice for the Presidential candidacy falling upon a Marylander, and that Marylander no less a personage than Hon. Arthur P. Gorman.

The Maryland delegation should go to Chicago unpledged, or if pledged at all pledged to Gorman.

ANOTHER OBJECTION.

It is claimed that the method of taxing bonds in the Hayes bill would have been unconstitutional. This method was to assess six per cents. on sixty per cent of their face, five per cents. on fifty and four per cents. on forty. This arbitrary standard, it is pointed out, does violence to section 15 of the Bill of Rights which provides for the taxation of all property in proportion to its value.

It looks, indeed, as if the framer of any assessment bill would be as Governor Brown put it, "between the devil and the deep sea." To obey the constitution strictly would work so many injustices that evasion of the law has actually been suffered. Yet the constitution can not be disobeyed. The horns of the legislator's dilemma then are violation of the constitution and contravention of the moral law.

CLEVELAND AND GORMAN.

To repudiate the charges made in some quarters that the regular Democracy of Maryland is disposed to belittle Mr. Cleveland and his services, comes the action of regular Democratic clubs in Baltimore and elsewhere in passing resolutions which destroy any such assumption. These charges have been made by people of questioned consistency and fealty to Democratic tenets and who fancy that praise of Mr. Gorman necessarily means derogation of Mr. Cleveland. All true Democrats are Cleveland Democrats just as they are Jefferson Democrats, and there is no reason why a Cleveland Democrat in Maryland cannot support Mr. Gorman for the Presidency.

A large meeting was held in Baltimore Wednesday night in the interest of Mr. Cleveland's candidacy for the Presidency. The best-known speaker was ex-Governor Whyte who urged that the true Democratic creed is "Principles, not men." He thought Mr. Cleveland the true embodiment of Democratic principles.

After our outside forms had been sent to press there came such a sudden and heavy rush of advertisements, including the local laws, that THE TIMES' news matter is again curtailed. The rush came too late to admit of getting out a supplement. The advertisements will all be found, however, mighty interesting reading. Look out for the new ones.

A high tribute was paid to Senator Gorman as a Presidential possibility by chairman Beltzhoover before the Pennsylvania Democratic convention Wednesday. Resolutions were adopted endorsing Mr. Cleveland. The delegation to Chicago was bound to the unit rule but otherwise uninstructed.

The Democrats of Delaware are said to be solid for Cleveland unless there should be a chance for a son of Delaware, for whom, course, State pride would make them solid. Cleveland Democrats in Maryland feel the same way. It would be a great honor to this State should Senator Gorman be the man.

At Harris' Academy of Music next Monday evening that very popular comic opera comedian, Mr. Digby Bell, will make his first appearance at this theater in five years and at the head of his own company, presenting for the first time in Baltimore a new comic opera, the title of which is "Jupiter; or, the King and the Cobbler," Mr. Bell playing both characters, the most ambitious ever attempted by a comic opera comedian. The libretto is by Harry B. Smith, the clever author of "Robin Hood," "Sinbad" and "The Tar and The Tartar," while the music is from equally as successful a composer, Mr. Julian Edwards. The story is one new to comic opera, and is certainly the funniest in the history of this popular style of entertainment. The production will be an unusually elaborate one, the scenery being exceedingly gorgeous and historically correct, while the costumes are marvels of beauty. In selecting his company, Mr. Bell was most careful to surround himself with people who are, in their particular line of work, as good as Mr. Bell is in his.

WATCHMAKING AND JEWELRY.

NO TIME LIKE THE PRESENT.

It is perfectly true that there is no time like the present. As a matter of fact, there is no time but the present. The past is the time that has been, the future is the time that is to be.

Those who are wise give to each day what belongs to it. That is the only true way to keep pace with the passage of time, unless indeed you happen to be without a watch, in which event, can assist you to be on even terms with time to the second. The reliability of a watch is not always contingent upon its price. A good time-keeper is worth time and money.

U. JEANNERET, OF ELLICOTT CITY,

Wind me up carefully,
Don't let me run down,
For I've been repaired
By the best man in town.
I feel like a new watch,
I'm polished and bright;
Correct time I'll keep
For I know I'm fixed right.

By U. JEANNERET, Ellicott City, Md.
