The frequency of tramps visiting this neighborhood (and we suppose other neighborhoods are suffering the same infliction) has become an annoying if not an expensive nuisance. Some of the residences have been visited almost daily throughout the winter by these peripatetic wanderers who will avoid a wood-pile as a mariner would avoid a shoal. There is plenty of work on the farms and it is a question whether so large a population should be allowed to scour the country when there are opportunities to earn their bread and meat instead of begging it. A good tramp law is one of the omissions of our late legislature. In some states there are laws requiring habitual tramps to work on the public highways.

The session of the Maryland Legislature expired by constitutional limitation at midnight Monday night.

A GREAT SPEECH FROM MR. VOORHEES.

An Able Presentation of the Democratic Party's stand on the Measure which Will Reduce Taxes and Still Increase Government Revenues.

When the Senate met Monday there was an unusually large attendance on the Democratic side of the chamber in anticipation of the launching of the tariff bill upon its stormy journey.

Senator Voorhees accomplished what was probably the effort of a lifetime. His speech opening the great tariff debate was a sound, ringing effort, and was an able presentation of the stand the Democratic party has taken. It was a lengthy speech of fully 15,000 words, and among the Senator's telling points, which were frequently applauded, were these:

The protective system of tariff taxation as developed and fastened upon the business and labor of the American people, especially during the third of a century past, growing worse at every stage, is a system of indescribable injustice and oppression; and yet who will contend that all its vicious principles and workings, ramified as they are through every branch of trade and commerce, can be annihilated by a single blow, or totally wiped out by a single legislative enactment? For the bill now under consideration no such claim is made, but in its behalf can be truthfully asserted, and will be successfully maintained, that it accomplishes a vast work in the field of tariff reform, embodies a great relief to the people from iniquitous existing burdens, and constitutes a long stride, though not a final one, toward the approaching day of a full and perfect deliverance.

Sir, I challenge the attention of the Senate and the country to the great and commanding fact that by the provisions of this bill the seeming paradox of a reduction of taxes and at the same time an increase of public revenues will be reconciled when it becomes a law.

Faults and imperfections can, of course, be alleged and pointed out; concessions are apparent which have been unwillingly made and only when found absolutely necessary in order to secure its passage; articles on the free list as they came from the House have been made dutiable under the duress of a small majority here, yet, deeply as I regret the necessity for these changes and earnestly as I oppose them, I do not hesitate to say that the bill, taken as a whole as it now stands, with its combination of lower taxes on the necessaries of life, and at the same time increased revenues for the Government, will be hailed as a substantial measure of reform and relief by the great producing masses of the American people.

The criticisms which assailed the bill as it came from the House because it created a deficiency in the Treasury no longer apply. We present a measure full freighted with revenue for every call that can be made on the republic at home and abroad, and with a surplus besides of $29,389,245.

Manufacturing interests which 100 years ago were in deed and in fact in their infancy, and were nursed and fostered while yet in the cradle of their birth, are now the colossal taskmasters of the whole people, commanding tribute from every day's labor beneath the sun, haughtily striding the corridors of this Capitol, and issuing their edicts in the tones of dictators for or against the enactment of pending measures in the halls of Congress.

The favorites of fortune, pets of vicious legislation; those to whom the Government has farmed out the power of oppression over others, take no heed of the rights, the protests, the sufferings or the servitude of the mighty masses who constitute the nation's strength and glory.

I stand here to deny that in can be shown anywhere since the Republican party came into power 33 years ago, that the wages of a working man or woman, in furnance, factory, or delving mine, has ever kept pace with increased tariff rates, or indeed had any increase at all, on account of high protective tariff legislation.

Wage reductions, strikes, lockouts and labor strifes of all kinds contending for fair treatment at the hands of capital in every branch of manufacturing, have never been so prevalent in American history as since October 4, 1890, when the McKinley bill became a law.

Absolute free trade in sugar is an attractive theme, but no such thing has ever existed for a single hour since the organization of this Government. A moderate duty has always been imposed on sugar, and it has always been a staunch revenue support to the Government.

It is conceded by all parties that the duty paid on imported sugar goes more fairly and squarely into the Treasury than any other duty provided by law, and it follows, as light follows darkness, that tariff taxation can therefore be reduced in proportion on other things which the people have to buy and use. The McKinley bill, on the contrary, by pretending to take sugar off the dutiable list, was intended to reduce the revenues of the Government, and thus make an apparent necessity, a fraudulent excuse for higher rates of duty on woolens, on iron, on tin plate, on salt, on binding twine, on cotton ties, and on all other articles of prime necessity in agricultural life.

In securing a sufficient revenue for the support of the Government with as light a tax as possible on the necessaries of life, I have at all times earnestly favored an increased tax on whisky. I would be glad today if the pending bill provided for a tax of $1.20 per gallon, instead of $1.10, as it does. Revenues raised from distilled spirits, the purchase and consumption of which is never a necessity of life, is a deep gratification to me, and the fact that $20,000,000 of the surplus accruing under this bill will be furnished by the tax on whisky is a genuine joy to my mind. My sincere regret is that more money for the Government was not obtained from the same source, and consequently less from other sources of a different character.

The proposition contained in the pending bill to levy a tax of 2 per cent. on all net incomes of corporations and of individuals in excess of $4000 per annum is so just and equitable toward the hardworking taxpayers of meagre resources throughout the entire country that not a word in its defense or explanation would seem necessary here or anywhere else.

On all the wants and necessaries of life the man of wealth, with a heavy income, pays less rates of tariff tax under existing laws than the laboring man or laboring woman whose wearing apparel is of coaser material, and whose household living is supplied with cheaper goods bearing higher rates of duty.

Sir, for no earthly consideration would I paint an unjust or overwrought picture of the dangerous pretensions and intolerable arrogance of accumulated wealth now manifest in this country, but, speaking in the fear of my Maker, I devoutly believe that the limit of endurance has been reached; that the time has come for a test to be made between the power of hoarded money and the power of productive labor; that the people from this time forward, more than ever before, will organize and take rapid and heroic measures against the continued and brutal dictation of the plutocracy, against the paramount influence of wealth, against the rule and supremacy of the rich in shaping the financial policy of this Government in their own interests.

How small in number is the income class in the United States, yet how potent! How few in comparison with the great body of the people, but little more than one in a thousand, yet how aggressive and strong! How pretentious, how presumptious in dictation to the Government in regard to all its policies, yet how unpatriotic in the hour of peril, how mean in the face of danger to the country! The income class, based upon the principal ownership of the entire wealth of the country, is mainly the illegitimate offspring of Government paternalism and Government support, yet neither gratitude nor love of country has ever moved it to respond in aid of the Government in an hour of emergency and need. From no other class could the payment of the whole pension roll be required so justly.

Duties on manufactures of wool, their enormous rates often obscured and hidden by the specific system, have always constituted the very Gibraltar of high protection in this country. With this fortress of greed and gain, dedicated now to the plunder and spoliation of the people, once overthrown the whole system of tariff protection will receive its death blow and totter to its early fall. A mighty advance toward such a result is made by the bill now before the Senate. In the list of reductions proposed by the bill it is most gratifying to be able to announce that the reduction of duties on woolen wear leads all others, and that wool itself is transferred to the free list. The reductions on iron, steel, lead, copper, zinc and other metals are placed at $12,500,000, while a reduction of $23,500,000 is placed to the credit of the people on their woolen clothing and woolen household supplies.

If I believed wool on the free list would hurt the farmer I would not vote for the pending bill. It is a matter of actual demonstration, however, which has been often made, that free wool, accompanied by such reduced rates as can then be placed on manufactures of wool, and which are placed on them in this bill, is one of the greatest blessings that can befall the farmer.

When the day shall dawn in which the farmer, the mechanic and the wage-worker shall alike have the right and the privilege to go into the open, liberated markets of the land and buy where their hard-earned money will buy most for their wants, with none to molest, to assess, to levy, to take toll, or to tax, then, indeed, will the millennium of labor have come, and all the sons and daughters of toil shall rise up and call their Government blessed.

Sir, this is the birthday of Thomas Jefferson. One hundred and fifty-one years ago today he came into the world the greatest emancipator of thought, philosopher of liberty, and teacher of the natural rights of man ever known in human history. The blows he struck for freedom, justice and equality in government are yet resounding throughout the earth, and they will never cease to be heard until the last shackle of privilege and tyranny is broken. Ten days before his soul took flight from his mountain home he wrote his parting words to his own countrymen and to all the races of mankind. With this great dying message before us, and in its spirit, we take new courage and go on with our work. "All eyes are open, or opening," he said, "to the rights of man. The general spread of the light of science has already laid open to every view the palpable truth that the mass of mankind has not been born with saddles on their backs, nor a favored few booted and spurred, ready to ride them legitimately by the grace of God." Hail, mighty message, and hail its speedy and certain fulfillment! All hail the counsels of Thomas Jefferson in this hour of caste based on wealth, of privilege granted by law, and of monopoly fastened on the slavery of labor!

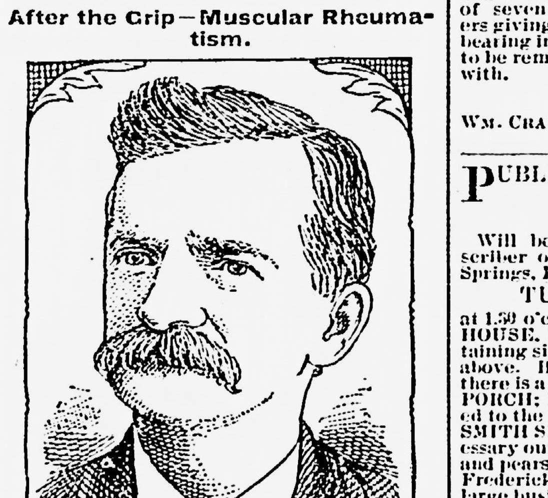
An Esteemed Pastor

Found Cure in Hood's After Other Medicines Failed

After the Grip—Muscular Rheumatism.



Rev. C. W. Clapham

The following comes voluntarily from a highly esteemed clergyman of the M. E. church, pastor of the Church Creek circuit in Dorchester County, Maryland:

"C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"I feel it a duty to the public to send this certificate. I saw in a Philadelphia paper a letter from a man who had suffered from

and had been restored by the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I had the grip in the winter of '91 and '92 so severely that it deprived me of the use of my arms so that my wife had to dress and undress me, and when away from home I had to sleep in my clothes. I tried five doctors and not one accomplished anything. Then I saw the letter alluded to and determined to try

HOOD'S Sarsaparilla CURES

Hood's. Before I had taken one bottle I had the use of my arms, thank God. These are facts and can be verified by many persons here. J. M. Colston, Church Creek, supplied me with Hood's. I am pastor of the M. E. church here." C. W. CLAPHAM, Church Creek, Maryland.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to buy any other instead.
